GERMANY'S PLACE
IN THE SUN

In the months that are to come during which the war will certainly continue, the battle line may waver backward and forward and there may be times when the legions of the kaiser will have temporarily the better of it; but the final outcome became inevitable when the German plan to strike the quick and fatal blow at the French army and to capture Paris failed. "The Day," for which the Germans prayed, must dawn for them upon a morning of sorrows, and the kaiser's place in the sun will quite probably be St. Helena.

The German autocracy is beaten.

With this outcome inevitable, the question which will present itself to the minds of the civilized world is what arrangements can ultimately be made to provide against a repetition of such a crime as a world's war.

One or two things seem reasonably certain. First of all, Europe will be relieved for all time of kaisersm. This age will not permit such nations as Germany and Austria to lapse back into the place where a militarist cult can control the affairs of millions of people and where it is within the power of single hands to pull the wires that may precipitate war. That the German people themselves have long since been prepared for this is manifest from the returns of recent elections in Germany; in fact, it is within the realms of possibility that not the least of the considerations which led the kaiser into war was the impending peaceful revolution which would have taken out of his hands the autocratic control of German affairs. In this outcome, the German people stand to gain profit by defeat.

One other thing which seems certain to eventuate is the redistribution of Europe according to nationalities and races. Europe's geography at the present time is a most unnatural geography; Poland divided among three countries; Alsace and Lorraine in a Teutonic confederation; Trieste in Austria; Galicia, with its Slavs, under Austrian control; the Magyars of Hungary dominated by the Teutons of Vienna; Turkey holding hundreds of thousands of Christians under a Moslem administration; Serbia denied an outlet on the sea; Russia, with the greatest wheat-growing region in the world, denied an open port on the Atlantic, the Mediterranean or the Indian ocean. All these things are "triumphs" of diplomacy; each one constitutes an unnatural arrangement containing all the elements of incitement to war, and all together cry out for the abolition of the thing which militarist governments and jealous despots designate as diplomacy, but which is really pestiferous devilry.

These things the termination of peace may straighten out. But there is another consideration which triumphant allies in the hour of their triumph are quite likely to overlook. It is the fact that the world cannot afford to stultify the genius of the German people.

Germany has sixty-seven million people. One million babies are born within her borders every year. Her total area is 208,000 square miles, just about 45,000 square miles less than the province of Alberta. In this crowded area her people have shown a wonderful genius. They have contributed to the world in the past 40 years some of the most conspicuous achievements of progress. They need room to expand. They sought it through militarism—the obsession of a crazed autocrat—and have failed.

But what they have failed to get through war, the democratic spirit of the world should see that they get through peace.

No better safety valve could be applied than one which permits the German genius room to expand. To refuse this invites another explosion.

THE MOST EFFICIENT BRANCH OF THE WAR DEPARTMENT

The censor's defense for the "fog of war" with which he surrounds the movements of the army is that information is the most destructive commodity that can come into the hands of the enemy. A war map published in Paris disclosed McMahon's whereabouts and led to the French catastrophe at Sedan. A dispatch carelessly thrown away was the undoing of the confederate efforts at Antietam. A parish priest guided the French at Jena. A peasant showed the road at Creecy. Squawking geese saved Rome. Laura Secord brought the word which saved Canada at Beaver Dam. A paragraph published in a Vienna paper in '66 reached Frederick William within a few hours via Berlin and London, in time to convey to him the information necessary for the general engagement which sealed the fate of Austria. In fact, history is brimming over with instances of where a scrap of information has swung the victory.

And thus, when three hundred thousand British troops cross the channel the wires are silent. Where the 50,000 Indian troops are now we know not, nor where the Shanghi troops which embarked many days since, nor where one hundred thousand Japs who are reported to have loaded for over-seas have disappeared to, nor whether or not the Russians really have an army with the allies.

The rival armies hook in a death grapple. The world senses it from what is not said. Silence ensues. Days after, when the result has been incontestably established, the curtain is lifted and just a glimpse of a fleeing army is given a public which has been waiting breathlessly expectant, for the news. Where the army came from which overwhelmed the invaders, how they got there, or where they are now, does not find a place in the dispatches.

In this war the most efficient branch, so far as can be judged from this distance, is the censor's.

The Adventures of Kathlyn

By Harold MacGrath.

SYNOPSIS OF PREVIOUS CHAPTERS.

Kathlyn here, believing her father, Col. John Umphalash, had sent her home in California to go to him in Umballah, pretended to be a tauran of that tribe, and impeded the colonel, named by the late king as his successor, from entering the camp. The king, however, insisted on his royal rights.

John Umphalash, who, Kathlyn informed by Umphalash that her father was dead, she to be queen and marry him, was forced to leave the camp. He was sentenced to undergo two ordeals with the spear.

John Bruce, an American and fellow passenger to India, saves his life. The elephant which carries him from the camp runs away, separating him from his friends.

After a ride filled with perils Kathlyn takes refuge in a ruined temple, but here she is captured by a band of savages.

Bruce and his friends effect the release of Kathlyn, who, though she is now the captive, gives shelter in the palace of Alalia Khan with canopy and canopy to most hospitable prince, the party who are to be entertained by him.

Powered by a band of friends and the encounter results in the colonel being delivered to the king, who releases him.

Bruce finds a hiding place in the home of Umphalash, who, though he is the son of Pundita, the hater is the lawful queen of Alalia and public sentiment is for her to be restored to the throne.

John Umphalash, who is very weary, with Umballah at their head and Kathlyn has been left at home, but when the tidings come that the revolutionists have captured the king, Umphalash goes out and assumes command of and inspires the troops to retake and make the leadership which the turned and the rebels are victorious.

CHAPTER XXVI

Mured and the men with him started off. In Ahmed's opinion considering what lay before them, elephants were more important than colored stones and yet... Without the elephants they would indeed find themselves in sore straits.

"Let us move away from here," advised Bruce, picking up the long spear. He walked several yards away, tossed spear and pick into the bushes, tore at the turf and sat down on it, giving it every appearance of having been dead a week. This colonel nodded apprehensively. It was a sound point and he had overlooked it.

They returned hastily to camp which had not been fired in a fortnight. Bruce had a basket. Umphalash was pleasantly gazing at his wife. Kathlyn and Winifred were laughing and the keepers went after the trout and the fish.

The noise of the chase died away. Bruce was lighting his pipe. The colonel examined his spear and found it was not the same which he had taken from the basket. Umphalash was pleasantly gazing at his wife. Kathlyn and Winifred were laughing and the keepers went after the trout and the fish.

The camp was surrounded. From one side came Umphalash, from the other came Kathlyn, with the same face. They were taking Bruce and the two between came Umphalash, with Bruce and Umphalash and Pundita effectively separated. Umphalash and his men closed in on the colonel and his daughter. Treasure and revenge.

Bruce made a furious effort to join Kathlyn, but the numbers against him were too great. It was all done so suddenly and effectively and all due to their own carelessness.

"Kit," said her father, "your only chance is to refuse to escape. Umphalash wants to hide the children in the basket. Winnie, if you open your lips it will be death—yours, Kit's, mine." To his last words he spoke like this!

"O, Kit, in a hour, I shall be a precious stone again, if I live, Iabor them! I am my father's daughter," said Winnie.

"Put the hoodahs on the two elephants. Umphalash is coming."

The men obeyed churlily, being fishermen by occupation and mahouts by calling.

Kathlyn tried in vain to see where they were taking Bruce and the others. Some day, if she lived, she was going to devote a whole day to sweeping for them and see to it in this land. The thought caused her to smile, despite her despair.

WORLD RECORD IN BRIDGE BUILDING

Royal Canadian Engineers Do
Some Fast Work at Military Camp.

The history of the establishment of Valcartier military camp is a record of remarkable engineering achievements. Within a few days the Canadian Northern railway, transversely, an insignificant flag station, serving a small Irish colony, into an important terminus point with 20 miles of railroads, giving a splendid impetus to the establishment of the camp and expediting the movement of the men and materials which went to make this city of 30,000 souls.

On Aug. 10, 1914, the record of a bridge-building record made by the men of the Royal Canadian Engineers under the direction of Major W. B. Bethune, Captain of Works, No. 1, Jacques Cartier river separates the main camp from the artillery practice grounds at the base of Mounts Ileens and Irene. Across the river is a camp of works, the Royal Canadian Engineers built, within four hours, a barrel-pier pontoon bridge capable of carrying heavy batteries. The Major said his 300 men worked well and with energy and efficiency which characterizes the efforts of the British bred. The race for the record started with the Canadian Northern railway, Prince Edward—barrels, piping, etc. were freighted on to the ground with remarkable despatch. The casks were made water tight, the timber was made ready, the footings took down to provide an even grade for traffic and the actual test was on.

There was never a hitch. One party of men laid the barrels to the marshes to be used as concrete and operation was complete, another party lit the pier and carried it down to bank. Another squad of men conveyed it on to the bridge. The extra 10 minutes were made water tight, the timber was taken by chains by still another squad and then set out to the front line. The pier was drawn quickly into position, and as many as 100 men worked with freedom. The bridge was built in record time, 12 hours, 10 minutes. The extra 10 minutes were made available for the removal of the men making up the Royal Canadian Engineers at the big camp.

There was never a hitch.

War Atlases to Readers of the Edmonton Daily Capital

As soon as the war started in Europe the Daily Capital made arrangements to not only chronicle the events connected with it day by day, rapidly and accurately, with the latest illustrations, but also to give the people of Edmonton and Alberta an atlas by which they could, in connection with the news as published in the paper daily, secure what was paramount to a birds-eye view of the engagements as they took place.

We scoured the continent for information and have had compiled a veritable encyclopedia of the war in Europe. It is an atlas, printed in colors, of 16 pages, each 12 by 16 inches.

OUR WAR ATLAS.

This is the most complete and attractive atlas in print. The size is 12 by 16 inches. The cover is in full colors and very attractive, showing the flags of nations at war and a beautiful small round map of the world in colors. Inside are large clear, beautifully colored, 50 by 20 inch maps of Europe and the World and smaller half page maps of Britain, Russia, Germany, Austria, Balkan States and France. These maps are in full colors. There are eight pages of splendid halftones and text. The pictures are all taken from a private collection of photographs which show the very latest pictures of the armics, navies, airships and leaders of all the nations at war. This collection of pictures is a wonderful addition to the atlas and is exclusively our own.

Among these pictures are one of the British flagship "Iron Duke," Earl Kitchener, British torpedo boats and aeroplanes practicing in the North Sea, the theater of the great naval struggles of the present war, naval guns in action, cruiser being destroyed by an "assassin of the sea," a submarine torpedo; German, French, Russian, Austrian and other battleships and others.

The maps of the different countries are in the minutest detail, so that no matter where an engagement takes place, whether on sea or land, you will be able to put your finger on the spot and trace the movements of the various armies and navies.

This atlas and the maps will be a handy thing to refer back to, even after the war, when the map of Europe may be considerably changed,

The maps are revised right up to date, showing the correct boundaries of the Balkan States.

FREE DISTRIBUTION.

The Capital is going to distribute a limited number of these atlases in such a way that they will not cost the readers of this paper one cent.

England Now Needwork Mad Says Sir George Pragnell

IMPOSSIBLE TRUCK MADE OF IMPOSSIBLE MATERIAL

London, Sept. 15.—"England is needwork mad," declared Sir George Pragnell at a meeting of the London Committee dealing with the prevention of truancy. He was speaking in opposition to a bill to make truancy a criminal offense, and to be sent to the Prince of Wales' court, and he managed to defeat the scheme. Instead the committee decided to buy goods for the troops in India, and to raise money for the welfare of the soldiers.

"Impossible truck made of impossible material" was the way one might describe much of the output of the bit-or-miss sewing circles which are not working under government direction.

ESKIMOS PREPARE FOR RUGBY SEASON

Will Hold First Practice on Saturday Afternoon—Have Strong Team.

At a meeting held in the V.C.A. room Monday evening the Eskimos, the old reliable rugby team of Edmonton, organized for the coming season.

Alfredus Joe Driscoll was elected president and James McLean, manager and treasurer. The committee will be composed of players and will be chosen after the first practice, which will be held on Diamond Park Monday afternoon. A team captain will be selected at the first meeting. Deacon White will be on hand Saturday to see that boys get away from school, and training will not yet determine promised to coach them this season. However, it is altogether probable that he will if material of a sufficiently promising caliber turns up to his satisfaction.

The Eskimos have plenty of good material to start with, although some of last year's team have left the city on salaried posts. There are some of the veterans left in the city like Cormack, Art O'Donnell, Stearns, Yule, McKnight and many others. Some of the men who have played the game in the east have come to Edmonton and will be available for a tryout.

J. Driscoll and H. Dostoy were appointed delegates to attend the rugby meeting to be held on Wednesday afternoon, when the composition of the city league will be definitely decided.

W.C. BASEBALL LEAGUE MEETING PROMISES TO BE EXCITING ONCE AGAIN

Although President Fleming of the Western Canada League has a few friends, he has many enemies, so the league meeting killed for the Hat this week.

For the disinterested fans, from present appearances it looks as though Jim is slated for the discard, together with the league secretary, Mr. C. W. Clegg.

It must be admitted that in fairness, that the job of president is not only a brave man's task. Undoubtedly Fleming made an awful mess with his management, and certainly was rather chary of doing any favors for the press but on the other hand, did pull off an excellent comic relief performance. However, it would probably be advantageous to choose some other person to wield the destinies of the league during this next season as soon as a person gets it wrong, it is pretty hard to get it right again.

There is no possible advantage in being. It is true that I felt that there would be a new league secretary next year and although Clegg is a good fellow he is a joker when he attempts to handle the ledger records.

FREDDIE WELSH ALWAYS FAITHFUL

Freddie Welsh was the boy who did well in the ring. About a year ago Welsh was matched with Jim Clegg, and while he was rather chary of doing any favors for the press but on the other hand, did pull off an excellent comic relief performance. However, it would probably be advantageous to choose some other person to wield the destinies of the league during this next season as soon as a person gets it wrong, it is pretty hard to get it right again.

there would be a new league secretary next year and although Clegg is a good fellow he is a joker when he attempts to handle the ledger records.

In the early reports from England,

Freddie Welsh was quoted as saying that he would be a good boxer. He agreed to meet him in the ring. About a year ago Welsh was matched with Jim Clegg, and while he was rather chary of doing any favors for the press but on the other hand, did pull off an excellent comic relief performance. However, it would probably be advantageous to choose some other person to wield the destinies of the league during this next season as soon as a person gets it wrong, it is pretty hard to get it right again.

There is no possible advantage in being. It is true that I felt that

SUGGESTED POLICE DEPARTMENT BE IN COMMISSION HANDS

New Charter Committee Holds Meeting—Report to Be Given to Council.

The special committee appointed to look into the proposed changes in form of government, met this morning. A number of amendments were introduced by the chief among which were to abolish the police department under the control of a police commission, composed of a judge of the superior court, a justice of the district court, a superintendent of delinquent children, the chief of police and the mayor of the city; the adoption of a new system of taxation on streets, curbs, trees, having what he said and the present hotel board.

Mr. Harry Smith, chairman of the committee, thought that when the charter was completed and was published and ready for presentation to the people, the charter might be handed over to some reputable law firm for examination. He also suggested that over it to see that there were no possible loopholes whereby the city might be the loser. The charter had been thrown into his hands by the committee and it had been to bring it to the legislature at the coming session, but it was stated that it is altogether possible the resolution will be sufficiently long and detailed with the matter this year, although some of the aldermen are anxious to have the new charter submitted to the people as was promised at last election.

The new charter will be dealt with at Tuesday night's meeting of the city council. Mr. H. J. de la Cour, the City Clerk, Councillor and a number of speakers will be present to address the council in favor of the new charter. The committee to deal with the new charter will consist of Alderman Smith, Douglas, Kinsey, East, Campbell and Driscoll and City Solicitor Brown.
